

This is Kutztown University.

If you ask Ed and Amanda what Kutztown University means to them, they'll tell you it means challenging themselves to some pretty lofty goals.

For Ed, it means presenting geological research papers at symposiums around the country and working in gold exploration in Nevada. For Amanda, it means working as a graphic designer for Nickelodeon in New York while maintaining a full-time class schedule.

And they're not alone—every day, thousands of Kutztown students are pushing the boundaries of their educational experience as they lay the foundation for a successful future.
